WEEKLY ROAD TRIP/ PART-TIME DRIVER

Is work-life balance important to you?
Or is it more like life-work?

We're flexible and could use a hand with a regional delivery route. We've got the rig. All you need to do is call us.

A single weekly route is an option. Or drive two days a week. What works best for you? It could be a win-win.

If you have a valid driver's license, and clean driving record, stop in at 607 Capital Street in Lewiston for a cup of coffee and an application. Or call Julie at 208-848-2237

Family still chooses a side amid amicable divorce

DEAR ABBY: My wife's nephew is getting divorced. The process seems to be amicable; there was no cheating or abuse. They have two children. Even though the soon-to-be-ex, "Michelle," has always been welcoming and nice, my wife's family has circled the wagons. They no longer talk to her and have made clear I can't either. I don't think that's right.

Michelle has done nothing wrong and has been cordial to us. My wife says to stay out of it and never contact her. I think that's immature. I realize my thoughts don't matter. However, I'm thinking about contacting Michelle to say I feel bad about being in that position and apologize.

I think if I did, I'd feel better about myself, and she'd know that everyone doesn't hate her. Should something happen to my wife's nephew, I would have some basis for connection to the children. What do you think? -- NAVIGATING CHANGE IN ILLINOIS

DEAR NAVIGATING: I think you are more mature than your wife's family. You are an adult, and you should do what you feel is right.

DEAR ABBY: My father left our family when I was in sixth grade. Because he had cheated on our mom numerous times, he was removed from his ministry and went into education. I tried to resolve my feelings with him, but he would never admit his faults. When I finally asked him to tell me the truth, he refused.

I am now in my 60s and still angry at him. I have a wonderful wife and two beautiful kids he has never met. Before he dies, I'd like to tell him how I feel about him and ask him one more time to tell the truth. Is this worth the effort? He is

92, so I don't have much time. -- ANGRY STILL IN PENNSYLVANIA
DEAR ANGRY: Your efforts will be better spent if you meet with your father and tell him you forgive him for his transgressions. Do this not for him but for yourself, to free you from the burden of anger you have carried for all these years -- and will continue to carry after his demise.

DEAR ABBY: How does one approach, by phone, email or in person, a couple -- close friends of many years -- whose husband is slipping into dementia? Do we acknowledge and commiserate, pretend nothing is amiss, stop communicating and seeing them? Or ... WHAT, exactly?

The profound tragedy is that the husband has been an intellectual and executive giant of immense quality, with abundant gifts and skills. Watching this slow-motion tragedy unfold is agonizing. Not knowing what to say or do compounds the pain. -- DELIVERING PAINFUL NEWS

DEAR DELIVERING: Social isolation is a killer. People in the early to middle stages of dementia are capable of being social. What you should continue to do is be the friend to this couple that you always have been and take your guidance from the wife. She will appreciate your kindness and support during this difficult time.

Pets/Dogs

URGENT - FOSTER NEEDED!!!
Must be only animal. Bullet is a 2-yr old, 50lb Bull Terrier. He's a very active boy and would love to live with an active family. A fenced yard is required for him. He loves kids and affection of any kind. This boy loves to snuggle. He's good on a leash and knows a few commands. Bullet doesn't care for other dogs, and he will chase cats and chickens. He has good recall. He is neutered, vaccinated and house trained. Helping Hands Rescue at 208-743-3157
